If you are still wondering about how to use a certain aspect or facet of a particular social networking site (like creating a private group on Facebook for example), searching Youtube.com or Google.com can often lead to your answer.

- Most good “How To” articles or videos will also show you screen shots or clips of the steps involved, which is extremely helpful, especially if you are new to social networking.
- If the first link you find doesn’t answer your question try other links. If these still don’t answer your question, try to re-phrase your question trying to use the most technical and site-specific terms possible.
 - E.g. “Ways to take off name in picture on Facebook” won’t work as well as “Ways to de-tag yourself on Facebook”
 - OR, if you do not know site specific terms, you could first attempt to search for those terms, and then search for an answer to your question.
